On Saturday, May 12th, CADS member Dr. Shailee Gupta hosted an Asian Dental Health Fair as part of her project for the American Dental Association’s Institute for Diversity in Leadership Program. Over the course of a year, the twelve dentists selected into the Institute attend three leadership training sessions in Chicago at the ADA Headquarters. Each participant then puts the leadership principles and training they’ve received to practical use by selecting an issue or challenge in their community.

Dr. Gupta has been working with the St. David’s Foundation for the past 6 years and this is where she first gained the vision for her project. She realized that many Asian children and adults she treated were in need of a regular dental home, dental insurance, and dental education. Members of the Asian population sometimes have to overcome barriers to dental healthcare, which may include language, transportation, and knowledge of available resources. Dr. Gupta decided to help the Asian population break down these barriers by bringing dental providers, resources, and education directly to them by creating the Asian Dental Health Fair.

Attendees of the fair received a free dental screening and were then guided to booths to meet dentists, specialists, and dental clinics from all over the Austin area. There was also a kid’s corner with fun dental educational activities and face painting, a dental education area, healthy snacks, free giveaways, and entertainment from local Bollywood and Chinese Dance Groups.

The keynote speaker was Dr. Philip Huang, Medical Director for the City of Austin Health and Human Services Department, who spoke about Tobacco Cessation in the Asian Population. Council Member Bill Spelman was also in attendance to present a proclamation from Mayor Leffingwell declaring May 12th Asian Dental Health Day.

On April 11, 2012, the American Academy of Implant Dentistry (AAID) and two Texas implant credentialed dentists, Dr. Elliott and Dr. Buck sued the Texas State Board of Dental Examiners (SBDE) in Austin federal court claiming that SBDE’s advertising rule violates their First Amendment constitutional right to commercial speech. The Plaintiff’s allege the SBDE’s Rule 108.55 severely limits advertising of additional credentials in dental practice areas that are not recognized as a specialty by the American Dental Association (ADA) or the SBDE. That rule makes it virtually impossible for a dentist credentialed by the AAID to advertise his credentials under the first two parts of the rule, because (1) implants are not recognized as a specialty by the ADA and the SBDE and (2) credentials may be earned without a full-time educational program. These same principles apply to advertising of credentials for other practice areas that are not one of the nine specialty areas recognized by the ADA. Even if the first two parts of the rule could be satisfied, there are lengthy disclaimers that are required for a dentist who advertises his credentials. The Plaintiffs note that the SBDE can punish licensed dentists for violation of Rule 108.55 with monetary penalties and suspension of their license to practice dentistry.

The AAID was established in 1951 and currently has 3,440 members, about 741 of whom have either Associate Fellow or Fellow status. Since the certifying board of the AAID, the American Board of Oral Implantology/Implant Dentistry (ABOI/ID), began issuing its Diplomate credentials in 1989, only about 344 dentists have received the designation. Among the AAID’s 35 credentialed members in Texas (some of whom hold more than one credential), there are 16 Associate Fellows, 19 Fellows, and 16 Diplomates.

The Plaintiffs in the lawsuit state that they do not seek to advertise that implant dentistry is a dental “specialty” nor do they seek to advertise that they offer specialty credentials or they are “specialists”. They merely seek to advertise truthful statements relating to the credentials they and other dentists have earned from the AAID and the ABOI/ID.

On May 29, 2012, the SBDE filed an unopposed motion for extension of the pretrial deadlines to allow negotiations between the parties to see if Rule 108.55, which...continued on page 5 is currently being revised, issues raised in the Plaintiff’s Complaint. The motion was granted by Judge Yeakel.

Note: The SBDE at its Board meeting on April 27, 2012 proposed wholesale revision of its Business Promotion (dental advertising) rules, including Rule 108.55. The proposed Rule 108.55 contains a lengthy disclosure example as follows: “John Doe, DDS, General Dentist, with a special interest in Dental Implants. Dr. Doe received certification in Dental Implants from the Acme Implant Institute after successfully completing either an oral examination not based on psychometric principles or a written examination based on psychometric principles and following his successful completion of an informal, part-time, graduate level program lasting __ days and consisting of __ clinical hours of training and __ didactic classroom hours of instruction.”

The proposed rules were published in the Texas Register on May 18, 2012 and a link to them is on the SBDE website. Expect major changes to the Texas dental advertising rules.

Not an Easy Fix

Since the beginning of time, man has naturally attempted to get the best deal possible for goods and services. Dentistry is no different. We all have heard of dentists receiving a chicken for dental services and many examples of bartering. Even today, there are people that come into our offices and want to bargain for their care. I always say that, “it doesn’t hurt to ask” but the reality is that all offices have numerous expenses. While dentistry is an interesting combination of art, science, and judgment, a dental practice is a business.

The time and money one invests to become a dentist is enormous and it does cost real dollars- and a lot of them- to operate a dental office. Without a fair profit, it is impossible to maintain a dental practice for very long. Almost all dentists that I know are caring and compassionate individuals that provide a great deal of free or reduced-fee services on a regular basis out of the goodness of their hearts and an attempt to do the right thing for someone in need that has no means to compensate the office for a necessary service. Dentists have willingly provided free dental services either in their offices or at dental mission venues. I haven’t seen many automobile dealers or manufacturers give away cars to people that cannot afford them. I haven’t seen many houses given away either. My point is that I feel dentists do more than their fair share to provide for those in their communities but cannot give everything away for free for very long.

I keep reading that, “the dental care system in this country is broken”. I also notice that every article that I read seems to talk about all of the people that do not have dental insurance. In fact, 27% of Americans 65 years old or less had no dental insurance in 2008. I have always been a little mystified by folks with the means who think that they cannot get dental services if they do not have insurance. People make far more costly purchases without third party help. Again, the $30,000 automobile is a good example. Certainly, part of the equation involves choice. Certainly, oftentimes people are not able to purchase dental insurance or directly pay for dental services.

I contend that the dental system is not broken. It is just that there are many that cannot afford to have the care that they need. Your Capital Area Dental Foundation is very aware of the access-to-care problems in our community. We have teamed up with various entities to continually study the problem of limited access to dental care in our area and to try to provide solutions. St. David’s Foundation, Texas Dental Association Smiles Foundation, Central Health, and the Health Alliance for Austin Musicians (HAAM) and St. Vincent de Paul have been major players.

Now, more than ever, there are many people in our community working to make the lives of central Texans better by providing dental solutions and treatment to those in need. Many of these people are not dentists but caring people with unique talents who have become passionately engaged in dental care for the needy. They provide varied viewpoints and expertise. Of the twenty Trustees for the Capital Area Dental Foundation, seven are professionals in areas other than dentistry.

The Kaiser Family Foundation has done much research in the area of unmet dental needs. The latest results from Kaiser tell us that one in four children in the United States have untreated tooth decay and that one in four Medicare beneficiaries are missing all of their teeth.

The situation is dire but what should we do? Many believe that dental therapists are the answer. Others feel that dental care is a right and the government should provide this service. So we have a dilemma of having well trained and highly skilled dentists providing treatment or lesser-trained and educated making life-changing decisions and providing care. The alternative that we all contend with on a daily basis is the pressure to provide highest quality care for a fraction of a fair fee. If this trend continues, what would be the incentive for one to spend years to become a dentist while spending many thousands of dollars in the process to become a licensed dentist? The result is too much disease and a shortage of dentists.

Dr. Gupta is thankful to the volunteers, sponsors, dentists, clinics, and specialists that made this event successful. As a result, the Asian Dental Health Fair drew in approximately 140 attendees. Some participating dentists are already reporting treating patients they met at the fair in their office. The Asian American Resource Center, which is scheduled for their grand opening in April 2013, would like to host the dental fair in their new facilities as an annual event. The city will help with planning, marketing, and community outreach for the fair. Dr. Gupta hopes this will attract more attendees, volunteers, and visibility to the fair and its mission to the community. If you would like to volunteer next year, please email Dr. Gupta at sgupta@stdavidsfoundation.org.

The following points are central to my experience in the access to care problem:

- To educate everyone possible about the importance of effective oral hygiene. Especially those in high-risk groups. Prevention is the real key.
- To eliminate pain and infection for those not able to help themselves. This means that those that have the means to pay for their services should, so that the pool of those that cannot is smaller. We should strive to help those that truly are in need.
- To improve the appearance for those that have a dentition that affects their self-esteem and the ability to become employable.
- To maintain the high standards of treatment. Patchwork or inferior care would only worsen the problems.
- To do all we can as professionals to improve treatment models and the dignified delivery of care.
- To maximize donated dollars by keeping administrative costs to a minimum.

I contend that the dental care system in this country is not broken. What is broken is the lack of many Americans to take responsibility for their health—especially prevention of disease. Parents allow their children to eat and drink anything they wish and are surprised when there is decay. There are those, as in any profession or trade that are milking the system for all its’ worth. This is particularly notable in government-funded solutions such as Medicaid as highlighted on the PBS Frontline Dollars & Dentistry program which aired in June 2012. This is a big concern, but doesn’t reflect the practices of the great majority of dentists in the United States. Efforts to “fix” the dental care system all seem to involve lowering of standards and the creation of more administrative costs. As the late Dr. Jim Pride once told me, “everyone wants to fly first-class for coach fares.” There will always be more dental disease than can be treated. Education of the people to prevent disease continues to be the most valuable tool in any health professionals’ toolbox.

Committee Reports:
- Capital Area Dental Foundation: Dr. Kevin Kelp announced that they have elected four new trustees. Strategic plan was completed four weeks ago. DDS Program funded. Board member Kevin Kaylakie has been an important part of the Endowment Program in which Austin Oral Surgery has participated. Austin Community Foundation picked CADF as one of 10 non-profits to support.
- CADS Member Benefits: Dr. Wayne Radwanski reported that there is a change in the business model. 1. Three tier system. 2. TDA Perks has selected CNB to partner in the future.
- Dental Health/Access-to-Oral Health Care: Dr. Jeff Brunson discussed fluoridation issue is not going away. KEYE report reviewed.
- Judicial: Dr. Tom Wicheta reported that there are 3 new members. They are: Sameh Ahmed, Summer Ketron and Herbert Mills. A motion was made to accept the new members.
- New Dentist: Dr. Tim Franklin stated they had a successful boat party. No events are planned at this time. Sports team are active.
- Parliamentarian: Dr. Alan Moore handed out Policy Manuals. We need to keep a list of policies/resolutions. Policy Manual is flexible; the idea is that it can/should change as the organization evolves. The Policy Manual needs to be reviewed annually for accuracy and relevance.
- Public Relations: Dr. Barry Rouch reported that the TDA Newsletter mentioned fluoridation efforts this month.
- Sponsorship: Dr. Wayne Radwanski reported that sponsorship was good this year.
- TDA/TDA Delegates/Legislative Action: Dr. Jeran Hooten reported on legislative issues:
  1. Member tax service to determine how health law changes will affect members and report to the general membership.
  2. Non-Dentist Business Owners Entities were discussed. TDA efforts are aimed toward protecting the public.
- TDA Smiles Foundation: Dr. Kevin Kelp discussed issues on how this program funds active and non-active component programs equally possibly resulting in an inefficient allocation of funds.
- Website: One web page is not working.

President’s Report: Dr. Tom Wicheta:
- Having politicians present at general meetings was discussed. The issue is one of aligning CADS politically verses having general meetings become an open forum for virtually anyone to speak. Decision to have Republican candidate Robert Thomas to talk at August general meeting. Future political speakers must be in office in order to speak at general meetings.
- A big thank you to Dr. Cronin for organizing the May installation meeting.
- Gratitude expressed to outgoing President, Dr. Jeff Brunson, for a job well done.

New Business:
- CADS Membership Survey proposed by Dr. Tom Wicheta. Drs. Taylor, Naik, Stokley, McFarlane and Katz to form a committee and report to the board suggestions on how to better serve the members.
- Board Call Numbers. Nancy to send out call numbers to Board Members.
- Hazardous Waste Disposal issue with the City of Austin. Issue with 2+ members. Call president if another issue arises and CADS will make inquiries.
- Dr. Tom Wicheta requested a report from each standing committee in order to access present status and to plan for the coming year. Goals for each committee are requested no later than August.
- Dr. Kevin Kelp will present a plaque to Julio Serretti at the June meeting in recognition of his volunteerism.
- New Members Party. Suggestion by Dr. Tom Wicheta to bring back the idea of a yearly new CADS member’s party. This could be held in October each year. It was also suggested our sponsors be invited as an added value networking opportunity. The New Dentist Committee expressed interest in being a part of this event. Idea was generally accepted but tabled after a discussion about cost.
- On The Move section in Austin American Statesman. Dr. Jeff Brunson suggests putting Cassidy Neal from TDA was awarded a CADS Presidents award for her assistance in the fluoridation efforts this month.

Conclusion and Adjournment: The gavel was passed and the meeting was adjourned at 8:25 p.m.
